INTRODUCTION

If our parents are kind to each other, treat each other sweetly, children will also learn to behave in such a way that they will develop such skills. If a woman in the family respects her husband, then our son-daughter children in the family also consider this action of the mother, and the hormone to her father increases. They understand that it is necessary to respect parents. Unfortunately, not all families have such mutual respect and affection. In some families, instead of respecting the land, their efforts to dominate them, their aspiration to "make their own footsteps," are also three. Some of our women are grateful if they find a little more than their husband. In some cases, a man comes home drunk in a drunken state, insulting and reproaching a woman in front of her children. Children who see this condition do not respect their parents. Children become excessively imitating. They repeat what they see from the parents. As they say, "he does what he sees in a bird's nest", the children grow up in the bosom of the parents, taking a lesson from their behavior and behavior and gaining experience. Since the family is the main pillar of the state, society, it is society from its strength, peace, prosperity and stability. It is necessary to educate a spiritually and physically mature generation in the family, to prepare young people for the construction of family life, to be armed with modern professional secrets. It should be remembered that family education can be successful only if favorable conditions are created for the comprehensive development of our children. Most of the life of the younger generation passes in the family. Therefore, they get acquainted in the family with the complex problems of marriage.

MATERIALS AND DISCUSSION

If our parents are kind to each other, treat each other affectionately, the children will also learn to behave in such a way that they will develop such skills. If a woman in the family respects her husband, then our son-daughter children in the family also consider this action of the mother, and the hormone to the father increases. They understand that they need to respect their parents. Unfortunately, not all families have such mutual respect and affection. In some families, instead of respecting the land, their efforts to dominate them, their desire to "make their own moves" are also three. Some of our women are grateful if they find a little more than their husband. In some cases, a man comes home drunk in a drunken state, insulting and reproaching a woman in front of her children. Children who see this condition do not respect their parents. Children become overly imitative. They repeat what they see from their parents. As the saying goes, "he does what he sees in the bird's nest", children grow up in the bosom of their parents, learning from their behavior and actions and gaining experience. Since the family is the main support of the state and society, it is society that is a society in its strength, peace, prosperity and stability. It is necessary to educate the spiritually and physically mature generation in the family, to prepare young people for the construction of family life, to arm themselves with modern professional secrets. It should be remembered that family education can be successful only if favorable conditions are created for the comprehensive development of our children. Most of the life of the younger generation is spent in the family. Therefore, they get acquainted in the family with the complex problems of marriage.

Under the positive influence of existing family traditions, customs, rites and rituals, young people gradually expand in perfection. Traditions and rituals become a powerful weapon of education. The complexity of family education lies in the fact that each family is a unique scientist, he also shows his own characteristics in educational work. Family education can ensure the well-being of the younger generation only if it is in a harmonious relationship with social education. The absence or care of a father or mother in the family is a huge harm to education. The educational effect they give the child is lost. The balance in family education is broken. In such conditions, the child's heart is severely damaged. He becomes nervous, angry, rude, does not trust adults. The reading is also reduced. Another problem in raising a family is raising a single child. Under such conditions, the child will only be in the circle of adults. It will not be possible to deal with close children. If there are many children in the family, they raise each other. In addition, the family reconciliation of children, the relationship between parents and children based on inequality, the fact that the culture and knowledge of some parents are at a relatively low level, interfere with education, causing mutual disagreements in the family environment. In family education, you should pay attention to the following factors.

In particular, there should be a state of peace of mind in the family, a relationship of sincerity, a high parental reputation, maintaining unity among adults in the family when making demands on children, special attention should be paid to raising a child in work, establishing a strict regime and daily routine in the family, taking into account the requirements of parents.

In family education, the reputation of parents is of great educational importance. And this reputation is acquired by behavior, manners, discipline, modesty, efficiency. An important role is played by the pattern-the pattern, first of all, in the image. The fair, normative desire of parents is one of the most important ways to build a reputation. The process of education should not consist of boring, dry realities.

The reputation of the father is of great importance in the upbringing of the Uzbek family. A woman, a father who has a reputation before his children, is also respected in the church. Parents are the greatest in the eyes of their children. Therefore, you only need a reputation with the best qualities. Parents who possess human qualities are honored by their children for life. In the education of children as a harmonious personality, success cannot be achieved without connecting the school with the family. Therefore, it is necessary to expand educational and educational work between schools and parents.

RESULTS

The opinions expressed by teachers in meetings with parents are especially valuable for parents. Because they learn more about their children. Therefore, every parent who understands the fundamental essence of child rearing strives to strengthen cooperation between the family and the school.

Until the child enters and finishes school, parents should establish close contact with the school, always be aware of the appropriateness, manners of the child, consult with the teacher, the class teacher on educational issues and inform him about what he does after the lesson. In turn, the teacher must also convey to the parents the information that the child can read, manners, behavior, behave in school, solve problems that arise together if necessary.

The parent, whose child went to school, becomes a member of the school community. Therefore, parents are obliged to take an active part in the social life of the school. The interaction of parents with neighborhood activists, veterans of labor in the field of upbringing makes a significant contribution to family education.

Listening to an adult is the first step on the path of conscious discipline. The new relationship is in harmony with the old wonderful family traditions, including the tradition of recognizing the superiority of the father in the family.

The image of the father is supported not by force, but by the general hormone of the family to him. At present, it is impossible not to use the thoughts of our great thinkers in the education of children in the family, of course.

Master Alisher Navoi also says that children should always respect their parents, respect their parents, see one as the moon and know the other as the sun. Every parent should have a deep understanding of their duty and responsibility to raise their children. In the family, the responsibilities of the parent to the child and the child to the parent are as follows.

Responsibilities of parents to the child:

- 1) Give your child a beautiful name;
- 2) Release of literacy;
- 3) To give knowledge depending on who;
- 4) Teaching in accordance with the capabilities and profession of the teacher.
- 5) Get married, get married;
- 6) Make a nest;
- 7) Be fair in the distribution of inheritance among children.

The child's duty to the parent:

- 1) Listen to the advice of your parents, constantly help them, be kind, attentive, provide both spiritual and economic assistance in family matters;

- 2) Every child is a good companion and companion for his sisters and brothers, to be an example in manners, morals, work, scientific study;
- 3) Feel with your heart what your parents need, and show them practical kindness in this regard;
- 4) Not to thank the spiritual and economic support that he provides to the family;
- 5) Do not wash on birthdays, holidays and holidays;
- 6) Take special care of elderly parents, treat them with sweets, and help them realize their dreams;
- 7) Observe the last address with dignity, spend your salary with the most modest, unpretentious, relatives, the closest people who know it, respect it, if they reach the time and fulfill their occupation. Constantly remembering them and praying for their rights.

Just as a child becomes the meaning of his parents' life, so the parent forms the meaning of the child's life. That is, the love of parents for their child will not remain unanswered. The child also loves his parents very much. As noted above, the family is a sacred abode, rich in feelings. From this point of view, it is possible to show the family as one of the factors that have a significant impact on the upbringing of the child.

Taking care of children and raising them is both the right and the duty of parents. Let's hear this saying about it: "your breath has a right to you, your family has a right to you, give back to any rightful owner its right." A child can only find the love, compassion, and attention they need from their family.

The gradual exchange of emotions in the family has a positive impact on the child's personality and rational development. Work done together with the child, such as eating together, playing games, talking, watching TV, telling a story, etc., will further increase the value of the family to the child. The child draws conclusions based on respect in the family, attention to his person, to form his own attitude towards peers, friends, adults, children and society. A peace of mind and happiness of parents means peace of mind, happiness for the child. If there is harmony in the house, the child is also happy, if there is a problem in the house, then there is no doubt that the child also has problems. Of course, we do not want to say that there are apartments without problems with this

Problems are natural to be everywhere and always. The main thing is our success in solving these problems and how we approach them.

Both child molestation and its "search for language" are specific ways of solving problems in most families. Usually, parents try to find a solution to the problem in different ways. Our way of dealing with the problem will be an exemplary way of dealing with the problems that our child may face in society, friends and family.

The active participation of the child in making serious decisions in the family, the ability to freely express their needs and desires, the free expression of feelings and thoughts of family members create the basis for strengthening boundless affection, mutual respect and trust between family members. Such conditions play an important role in the ability of family members to feel fully protected and form a healthy environment.

In families where the rights and opportunities of children are unlimited, where they feel free, such values as goodwill, mutual understanding and cooperation, reconciliation, camaraderie of feelings, self-sacrifice, sincerity and kindness, confidence in the future always prevail. The inability to express your feelings and thoughts can lead to unpleasant situations, such as the inability of family members to annoy the family environment, to be vain, to fall into their shell and feel guilty about it. Qualities such as fear, anxiety, hatred, and depression are typical symptoms of children living in such families.

The most necessary food for a child is the love that is given to him. In any case, if the word spoken to the child is not expressed sincerely, then no family environment and no upbringing will give a positive result. The desired result can be achieved if you learn that children do not count from time to time for what they have done until they reach a certain age and that the feeling of fear has nothing to do with them. And we, on the contrary, start scaring our children with different words from their youth.

We try to build our whole life on the foundation of fear. Such a style of education and understanding, built on the basis of fear, cannot create love. This way of understanding clearly shows that the child cannot continue his life in such a way that his personality begins to develop from the age of 4 to 5 years before school, that is, he was given a means of education in the family until the age of 7 years. In this regard, we want to tell a story based on the wise question of our scientists "from the beginning of the child:

"Ibn Sina lived in a village and became a doctor. One day a girl and a young man from the same village got married. They live a good life. Nine months later, they had children. After a while, they were giving each other advice.:

"My child, how do we educate? Let's raise her so that when she grows up, she will become a real person who will benefit the earth, " her husband said. "You're right, that's what I was thinking. Let the good one ask Ibn Sina and stay where he is, " said his wife. This phrase pleased her husband. The couple raised a child and agreed on Abu Ali Ibn Sinonimi. He lived in a small, narrow hut, but it turned out that he was a scientist who had gone into the world of wisdom.

Abu Ali ibn Sina received a good reception from the couple. I asked them what they had come up with. - If you can advise us on how to raise our child. As long as it doesn't get big, let it be useful to el Land," her husband said. "When was he born?" , "What is it?" he asked Ibn Sina. "I was born early," the wife answered instead of the husband.

"Oh Saints, while the baby was born early in the morning, now it's a fountain, you're too late. "Sprouting from the head, a child from the age," - it was not for nothing that they said. With the birth of a child, you need to take care of his upbringing, " Ibn Sina said.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, we can say that in the context of modern economic and social changes, attention to the issues of family education is becoming an increasingly relevant topic. Our people have long regarded parents as the greatest, most moderate, and most respected person in the world. In countless proverbs and fairy tales created by our people, it is repeatedly said how dear parents are to the child, how kind they are. Ears for adults are a characteristic feature of traditional upbringing in an Uzbek family. Listening to an adult is the first step on the path of conscious discipline. The new relationship is in harmony with the old wonderful family traditions, including the tradition of recognizing the superiority of the father in the family.
